Why Spay/Neuter?

1. A spayed or neutered pet lives a longer, healthier life

Spaying your female decreases her chances of cancer.

A neutered male is less likely to roam so bites & diseases transmitted by fighting are reduced.

2. A "fixed" animal makes a better pet.

A neutered male's personality will not change except that he will not be distracted by females in heat.

He will be less tempted to leave your property & cross a dangerous road searching for a mate..

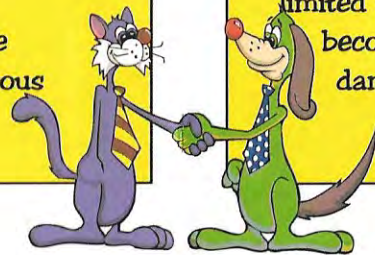

He is also less likely to mark your garden or yard with his urine.

A spayed female stops the problem of stray males camping in your yard and stops her desire to roam & breed.

3. You are helping solve the dog & cat overpopulation problem

Thousands of unwanted puppies & kittens are born every year in the Turks & Caicos.

The TCSPCA can only find homes for a limited number (100) every year. The rest become wild, living out a meager & dangerous life in the bush or they have to be put to sleep.

SPAY: (female)

an operation performed on a female animal so she won't have babies.

NEUTER: (male)

an operation performed on a male animal so he won't mate with a female.

How's That??

$1 \text{ female} + 1 \text{ male}$
 $= 420,000 \text{ kittens}$

 (and their offspring) (in 7 years)

$1 \text{ female} + 1 \text{ male}$
 $= 67,000 \text{ puppies}$

 (and their offspring) (in 7 years)
